WESTERN ELECTRIC RE-RECORDER

Westrex now offers to studios complete equipment for photographic, magnetic and disk recording.

With the new Westrex magnetic recording system, all original recording is done magnetically, making immediate playback possible. Magnetic film is used for editing and cutting, and can be erased and re-used.

A complete line of Westrex and Western Electric re-recorders provides facilities for 16 and 35 mm, 100 mil standard, 100 mil and 200 mil push-pull, and for magnetic recordings.

Re-recording and scoring consoles are offered in standard sizes and types as well as in special designs for the requirements of individual studios.

Westrex Theatre Sound Systems

SOUND AND PROJECTION SYSTEMS

Westrex Master, Advanced and Standard Sound Systems, all using Western Electric Hydro Flutter Suppressors in their sound heads, meet the requirements of every size theatre.

AMPLIFYING EQUIPMENT

For maximum flexibility, Westrex amplifiers are available in power ranges from 15 to 100 watts. All give clear undistorted reproduction even when operated at full capacity.

LOUDSPEAKER SYSTEMS

Westrex backstage systems for theatres and studio review rooms use the world-famous Western Electric loudspeakers. They range from single unit systems to large multiple unit installations. Westrex also offers a complete line of projection equipment, theatre supplies and accessories.

EDITORIAL NOTE

On the following five pages information regarding the motion picture community in general as well as specific facts and figures covering various phases of that community's activities are given.

Concluding this summary is a breakdown of the number of motion pictures produced throughout the world, since 1935, which have received the seal of the Production Code Administration.

Specific credits and information concerning individual personalities and motion pictures are easily accessible in the 1092 pages of the Production Encyclopedia itself.

INDUSTRY FACTS AND STATISTICS

19 motion picture studios are in active film production.

Studio capital investment is $135,000,000.

Annual expenditure for supplies and maintenance is $60,000,000.

Estimated annual production costs are $300,000,000.

25,000 artists, artisans, executive and other workers are engaged in production.

Average weekly earnings of craft workers in production are $99.13.

Average hourly earnings are $2.41.

A journeyman mechanic's rate is $2.50 an hour.

Production employees have contributed more than $11,000,000 to national and local charities since setting up their own fund-raising operation in 1941. In 1949 they subscribed $1,205,000, an average subscription of $69.72. In 1949 they contributed $892,543 additional to their own charity, the Motion Picture Relief Fund.

Through the Hollywood Coordinating Committee, stars donated 1,549 appearances for more than 600 patriotic and charity events.

In 1949 studio workers spent $19,065,000 for food; $5,022,000 for clothing; $13,121,000 for automobiles, gas and automobile maintenance; $5,626,667 for lumber and building hardware; $1,746,000 for drugs and sundries; $2,263,000 for entertainment; $7,099,000 for miscellaneous retail items.

63.7% of production workers have been in the industry more than 15 years.

79% are married and 70.1% have never been divorced.

59% of film workers have children.

66.5% of production workers own their own homes.

75.5% are high school graduates, compared with a national average of 27%.

61.3% of production workers go to church.

80% of the industry's workers voted in a recent Congressional election.

THE MOTION PICTURE COMMUNITY

The motion picture community, usually but not accurately called Hollywood, is the 25,000 artists, artisans, executives, clerks, mechanics, laborers and others who work in the studios and allied industries scattered over a 90-square-mile area in Southern California.

The motion picture community is the studios, each in itself a small community with streets, warehouses, police, firemen, carpenter and machine shops, dressmakers, library, power plants, cafe, barber shop, theaters, hospitals.

The motion picture community is where the studios are: Hollywood proper, a Los Angeles urban district, houses Paramount, RKO-Radio, Columbia, Samuel Goldwyn, Nassour, Monogram, General Service, Motion Picture Center, California, Eagle-Lion, Charlie Chaplin and Fox-Western; Warner Brothers and Walt Disney are in Burbank, 20 miles from Culver City, home of Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer and RKO-Pathe; in West Los Angeles, toward Santa Monica, is 20th Century-Fox, and Universal-International and Republic sprawl on the banks of the Los Angeles River in the San Fernando Valley.

The motion picture community is where the people live, in an area more wide-spread than the studios. A film musician lives on his chicken ranch in Chatsworth, 20 miles from Hollywood and Vine. An actress and her architect husband live on a boat on Balboa Bay, 50 miles down the coast. Some live in apartments in the typical city environment of Hollywood; some live in villa-like houses cemented to the faces of nearby hills. Sixty-six per cent live in their own homes.

The people of the community are as varied as is possible in a group of this size. For every performer imaged on film, 15 non-actors work behind the cameras. The thousands of studio employees have 276 occupations and are affiliated with 43 unions and guilds. Outside the studios are the allied industries, the film laboratories, property houses, trained animal compounds, transportation firms, research agencies, catering companies, camera and lighting equipment makers.

Like the people of other communities, the people of motion pictures are rich and poor, clever and ordinary, noble and base, as frail and as strong as any American group. Seventy-nine per cent are married; 70 per cent never have been divorced; 59 per cent have children. More than half have worked in the industry more than 15 years. Seventy-five per cent graduated from high school, compared with the national average of 27 per cent.

This community is the first place in the world where actors could live in permanent homes, and they work conscientiously at being home-makers and citizens. Within the studios they and their non-acting co-workers raise charity funds through a unique, pioneering agency called the Permanent Charities Committee, and through this agency production employees have contributed more than $11,000,000 in nine years.

In addition to giving this money to national and local agencies, motion picture people support their own welfare organization, the Motion Picture Relief Fund. And a public service organization called the Hollywood Coordinating Committee enlists the talent of screen, stage and radio for free patriotic and charitable events.

Outside the studios, picture people are active in the communities in which they live and exercise their citizenship. They work in the PTA. More than 80 per cent of them voted in a recent congressional election. At the Hollywood Presbyterian Church, largest of its denomination in the world, one actor is an active member of the music committee and another is a deacon. At Hollywood Christian Church an actress teaches Sunday school. An actor is a board member of Westwood Community Church, near the campus of UCLA. A survey of a representative group of film employees showed that 61 per cent attended church.

The motion picture community started in 1908 in downtown Los Angeles, where Col. William N. Selig converted a mansion into a studio and filmed "In the Sultan's Power," first complete movie made in Los Angeles. The community has grown into the heart of a business enterprise whose 18,000 theaters in this country gross one and a third billion dollars a year. It has spread over the world taking with it the story of America. It has introduced electric refrigerators to Africans and electric heaters to Eskimos. It has shown the samba to the Siamese and the jungle to Flatbush. And it has lowered the walls of the world to take concepts of freedom where freedom had never been known.

PERMANENT CHARITIES COMMITTEE

The motion picture community is proud of the fact that it contributes more money to charity per capita and more in relation to income than any other community in the nation.

Since the industry started its own fund raising in 1942, its people have subscribed more than $11,000,000 to national and local appeals.

In 1949, 17,287 persons subscribed $1,205,000, an average of $69.72 per donor. Studio carpenters averaged $29.49; culinary workers averaged $10.79.

All labor contributed $336,273, average, $22.84. Players contributed $316,355, average, $406.36. Production executives contributed $222,871, average, $560.10. Directors contributed $75,538, average, $585.57.

Allocations were made to four Los Angeles area Community Chests and six national charity organizations.

The fund raising is handled by the Permanent Charities Committee, composed of representatives of all unions and guilds, all studios, independent producers and allied industries.

Overall costs of maintaining the Committee and operating its annual campaign are slightly over three per cent of funds raised.

The Committee was formed in 1940, with Samuel Goldwyn as its first head. First step of the Committee was to investigate all charity requests and permit no solicitations of funds from studio personnel without the Committee's approval.

In April, 1941, under Edward Arnold's guidance, the committee set up its own campaign organization. Instead of merely authorizing worthy charities to carry on campaigns, it conducted them itself.

In the spring of 1945 the people of the industry voted to combine all drives into one annual campaign carried on by the Committee. The first Annual United Appeal was launched in the fall of 1945.

This campaign raised $1,546,375 from 20,048 donors, an average contribution of $77.13. Allocations from these funds to Community Chest and Red Cross represented 12.63 per cent of the Los Angeles goals of these two major campaigns, although the industry had but five per cent of the area's gainfully employed. It was the first unified campaign plan ever attempted on a major industry-wide scale. The plan since has been copied by other industries and has been studied by communities of all kinds all over the nation.

The Permanent Charities Committee campaign is conducted by 850 volunteer workers. Each studio has its campaign organization. Each union and guild has its organization. Actors are solicited by actors, electricians by electricians. Studio accounting departments handle a great part of the collecting, through a unique payroll deduction plan by which workers contribute only when they work.

Y. Frank Freeman, Paramount vice-president, was campaign chairman for the 1949 drive. Roy Brewer, international representative of the dominant labor group, the International Alliance of Theatrical Stage Employees, is president of the Committee. Edward Arnold, president in 1941, has been vice-president and treasurer ever since.

MOTION PICTURE RELIEF FUND

In addition to contributing to national and local charities, the motion picture community maintains its own Motion Picture Relief Fund to care for its own people when they need help.

The Fund has a complete welfare organization, a Country House for the industry's pioneers and a hospital.

Any motion picture worker who has been in the industry five years and has earned $1000 or more in each of four of those years is eligible for aid in the form of shelter, food, medical care and other necessities. If the "necessities" include something needed to put the worker back to work—wardrobe for an actor, for instance—the aid is given quickly.

To maintain the Fund's welfare work, $1,238,668 was raised in 1949. Of this amount, $892,543 came from payroll deductions of one half of one per cent from employees earning between $50 and $200 a week, one per cent from those earning more. Nearly 11,000 industry members subscribed to these deductions. All members of the talent guilds donate automatically, through resolutions voted in their organizations.

Welfare cases handled in 1949 averaged 665 per month.

Medical care was given to an average of 344 persons per month.

The Motion Picture Country House, built in a citrus grove 25 miles northwest of Hollywood, provides permanent residence for retired members of the industry who have been active for 20 years or more. There is an age requirement of 60 years for men and 55 years for women. All funds for the operation of the Country House come from the Screen Guild Theatre radio program, to which stars contribute their talents and studios and screen writers contribute the scripts from which the air shows are adapted. In 1949, for 39 performances 125 stars gave free appearances.

Adjacent to the Country House is a 40-bed, $3,000,000 hospital which is for the use of anyone eligible for Fund aid. In addition, the Fund owns 10 beds in perpetuity in Cedars of Lebanon Hospital in Los Angeles.

During the last year of World War I the Fund started as the Motion Picture War Service Association. It was incorporated as the Motion Picture Relief Fund in 1924.

The Country House was opened in 1942; Country Hospital in 1948. In 1949, 737 patients were cared for at the Hospital for a total of 13,088 days. During the year 163 surgeries were performed.

Jean Hersholt is president of the Fund.

HOLLYWOOD COORDINATING COMMITTEE

The motion picture community, which includes many of the people of radio and stage, provided free appearances of personalities in 669 patriotic public service and charity events in 1949.

The stars were made available through the Hollywood Coordinating Committee, whose members represent the Association of Motion Picture Producers, Screen Actors Guild, Theater Authority, American Federation of Radio Artists, American Guild of Variety Artists and the four major radio networks. George Murphy is president of the Committee.

Among the organizations aided were National Tuberculosis Association, American Red Cross, American Cancer Society, March of Dimes, American Heart Association, National Crippled Children's Society, CARE, Boy Scouts of America, Girl Scouts of America, Boys Clubs of America, Community Chest.

In 1949 each of the 117 veterans' hospitals was visited by one or more personalities. More than 40 stars each donated a week or more for a tour of hospitals. This hospital tour program is an annual event.

The Committee furnished star talent for the Armed Forces Radio Service, Treasury Department and the Army. More than 300 stars gave performances for Armed Forces Radio Service, whose programs were broadcast to veterans' hospitals and to armed forces overseas. Stars also performed each week for a radio show for Army Recruiting and for a national program for U. S. Savings Bonds.

In 1949 motion picture personalities participated in 35 benefits, 7 Army and Navy hospital shows, 28 hospital tours, 73 Army, Navy and Air Force shows, 260 radio programs for Armed Forces Radio Service, and 266 miscellaneous events.

From 1946 to 1949 a total of 7,346 appearances were made by personalities in 3,100 events, including 120 benefit shows, 149 Army and Navy hospital shows, 74 hospital tours, 305 Army, Navy and Air Force shows, 1,506 radio programs for Armed Forces Radio Service, and 946 miscellaneous events.

The Hollywood Coordinating Committee was born the day following Pearl Harbor, changed its name to Hollywood Victory Committee until the end of the war.

Following is the record of the Hollywood Victory Committee:

56,037 free appearances by 4,147 personalities in 7,700 events.

13,555 playing days by 176 personalities on 122 overseas tours.

5,947 playing days by 407 personalities on 406 hospital and camp tours.

2,056 one-night stands by variety troupes playing West Coast installations.

214 personalities on war bond tours.

264 personalities on war bond broadcasts and radio transcriptions.

2,428 entertainment transcriptions for overseas transmission by Armed Forces Radio Service.

38 film shorts made with top stars.

390 broadcasts and transcriptions for war relief and charity.

561 personal appearances for war relief and charity.

50 personalities on Canadian war bond tours.

34 personalities on transcribed radio programs for Canadian war bond drives.

19 personalities in film shorts contributed to Canadian war bond drives.

In addition, the industry contributed, free, 43,306 prints of feature films and 33,236 short subjects for American forces overseas.

MOTION PICTURES AND EDUCATION

The motion picture community is well educated and has keen interest in the education of the nation.

Teaching Film Custodians, a non-profit affiliate of the Motion Picture Association of America, was established in 1939 to bring to schools and colleges the many entertainment films which, by educational standards, are valuable in teaching. Committees of educators appraised hundreds of films and selected 300 short subjects as the nucleus of TFC's library.

Today the number of films accepted for teaching has jumped from the original handful to more than 1,000,000 prints of 7,000 different titles. Films are distributed through more than 700 educational film libraries.

In 1936 there were only 485 sound projectors in American schools. In 1949 an estimated 50,000 were in use and the total was expected to reach 75,000 by the end of 1950.

Through Teaching Film Custodians, the motion picture industry has made possible a four-year experiment involving an entire school system to establish the value of motion pictures to education. Thirty-five rural Nebraska high schools with 342 teachers and 5,403 students are taking part in this project, now in its final year.

The industry has financed all the films from every source necessary to the program. Nearly a thousand prints of motion pictures have been employed in the experiment.

Preliminary reports on the Nebraska project state:

1. That through the use of films the subject matter of the standard curriculum is being more effectively learned and better retained.

2. That communities neighboring on the experiment centers have been inspired to use more motion pictures on their own.

3. That all of the teachers' colleges in Nebraska have now introduced courses on how to teach with films.

4. That the interest of the pupil in national and international affairs, in current events, in the world in which he lives, has been immensely quickened.

The Motion Picture Association of America under the leadership of Eric Johnston is working in close cooperation with leading educators to develop the maximum usefulness of films in education.

The Motion Picture Association's educational projects fall into these general categories:

1. Excerpting single feature films to fit specific educational needs.

2. Combining excerpts from several feature films into one special educational motion picture.

3. Producing "tailor-made" teaching films on special subjects.

4. Distributing hundreds of "teacher tested" short subjects selected from the entire product of the motion picture industry.

5. Assisting in research programs on the use of motion pictures in education.

PRODUCTION CODE ADMINISTRATION

The motion picture community is self-respecting and believes in maintaining its own standards of good taste on the screen.

For this purpose the Production Code Administration was set up under Joseph I. Breen in July, 1934, to make effective the Code which first was drawn up three years earlier. Rev. Daniel J. Lord, S. J., of St. Louis made the original draft. The Code as adopted has served the industry and the American people with very little change since 1931.

Although the Code Administration is a part of the Motion Picture Association of America, non-members and members of the Association receive the same service. Opinions as to the suitability under the Code of story material and completed films are given to all producers. Members of the Code Administration staff consult with picture makers at all stages of production. The Administration is not a censoring body, but an agency of voluntary self-regulation. Films reviewed and approved under the Code receive a Code seal, but no requirement exists that a film have a seal in order to be exhibited.

More than 60,000 written opinions have been furnished film producers by the Code Administration since 1934. Approximately 3000 books, plays, story synopses, scripts and revised scripts are analyzed by the Code staff each year.

The Production Code has effectively prevented the multilation of finished films by political censor boards. When scripts are analyzed, probable censor cuts are pointed out; often the Code Administration suggests changes which will give a desired dramatic effect without risking censor board deletions.

More than 8000 feature films and nearly 10,000 short subjects have been approved under the Code in 15 years. Following is the record:

Your contributions to the CAPITAL BUILDING FUND OF THE CEDARS OF LEBANON HOSPITAL will help to continue the splendid service rendered during the past year. During that time 17,238 patients were hospitalized.

36,000 out-patients and 1,400 bed-patients were cared for without cost to the individual.

The Capital Building Fund Drive will make it possible to care for 5,200 more patients each year.

Send contributions through your family physician or direct to the hospital.
